Like all funeral directors in the UK, who provide cremation-only services, Freeman Brothers offers a standardised direct cremation, a non-attended service which enables friends and family to remember the person who has died at a date and time of their choosing, without using the crematorium chapel.

Freeman Brothers will choose the date, time, and location of the cremation. We will give you this information if you wish.

The cost for this service is £1395 and this includes the following items:

- Collecting the person from where they have died within a 30-mile radius during working hours
- Caring for them until the cremation
- Our advice and help with completion of the statutory paperwork, including an appointment for this to be signed
- A Derby foil coffin
- On the booked day, transport to the crematorium and the required staff to convey the coffin to the crematory
- The crematorium's fee for the direct cremation

The following additional fees may be chargeable, depending on the circumstances and your requirements:

Doctor's fee for the completion of statutory cremation papers..... £82

Collection of ashes from the crematorium on your behalf..... £5

Additional fee for collecting the person who has died, if outside 30 miles or working hours. Please ask us for our prevailing rates

This service is not able to be customised and there is no option to, for example, choose a different coffin; send flowers or ask us to administer donations; or express your preference for a crematorium. Freeman Brothers offers a bespoke cremation-only service which can be fully customised to your preferences. If you would like to personalise the direct cremation service, please ask for details.

Did you know...?

Freeman Brothers also offers a funeral service in Hills Cemetery Chapel, Horsham, followed by a direct cremation. This gives flexibility over day and time, and the Chapel has the facilities you will find in any of our local crematoria. For more information, please contact us.
